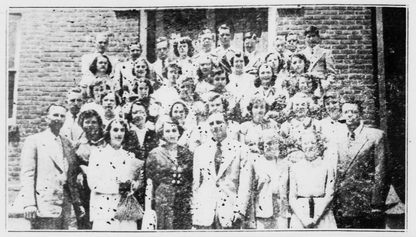
Youth Group At Liberty Baptist Church



Youth Week came to a close at Liberty Baptist Church on Sunday morning, August 11. James Beaty, one of the young men of the church brought the closing message at the 11:00 o'clock worship service.

Sunday school and the worship service were attended by a large crowd of members and visitors.

The above photo was taken immediately after the church service. Included in this picture are the young people who had full responsibility of the church for a full week. Some taught Sunday School classes, others were heads of the various departments, others preached, played the piano, planned the program, or served as secretaries of different departments, furnished special music, cleaned the church, mowed the lawn and then enjoyed a watermelon feast on Friday night.

Youth Week was surely an inspiration and help to the older people of the church as well as the young people who conducted it. The week was sponsored by the Baptist Training Union of the church.

VETERANS' NEWS

More than 3,000,000 men and women have been added to employment and to the armed forces during the past year, Veterans Administration said, on the basis of a special report prepared for the agency by the United States Department of Labor.

The report which covers current developments in the industrial field, shows that more people are at work today, generally speaking, than at any time since the end of World War II.

VA makes use of material from the report as the basis for vocational guidance to disabled veterans to receive training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act.

In the automotive industry, according to the report, employment outlooks may be anticipated as the supply of materials for passenger car production begins to show a drop, due to defense restrictions. Actually, between March and April employment in this field showed a decline of nearly 23,000 production workers. VA expects declines in some plants, however, to be offset by increased hiring of workers on tanks, aircraft parts and other defense spending.

Electronics, the report says, is still converting from civilian to military production. Radio and television manufacturers reduced employment sharply, while military electronics manufacturers showed an increase. By late fall, VA says, defense production may require an increase in the industry's total work force.

In gray iron foundries a steady upward trend since July, 1949, has slowed down in recent months. In agriculture, increased demand for food and fiber will call for farm machinery and tractors at or above postwar levels, VA said.

Vision Institute Declares Sewing Is Not Lost Art

Is sewing a lost art among American women? Not by a long stitch, says the Better Vision Institute.

More than two-thirds of the nation's women are sewing their own clothes. Department store sales of yard goods have tripled in about the past ten years. And over 100,000,000 patterns are being sold annually.

All this means that American women are subjecting their vision to one more taxing job, in addition to the many others demanded by modern life. For sewing is, at best, an exacting task, and some types of sewing are especially trying to the eyesight. For example, a seamstress working with black thread on gray cloth needs ten times as much light as one working with black thread on white cloth. It is most difficult to sew when the thread and the fabric are of a similar color. Than the major means of distinguishing between them are: the little shadows caused by the thread, the minute ridges made by tension of the stitches, and highlights on the fabric or thread.

A person who goes in for sewing should be careful to observe the following simple rules of eye-care, warns the Institute:

1. Don't sew with tired eyes.
2. Sew only under good seeing conditions, with adequate illumination. Make sure that your back is turned to the light, so that it comes over your shoulder.
3. Rest the eyes occasionally by closing them or by gazing into the distance.

Poll Proves Most People Want Extra Hour of Sleep

If you hate to get up in the morning, don't worry—you've got lots of company.

That extra hour or so of sleep in the morning is worth anywhere from $14 to $32 a year to most people. This is reported by Minneapolis-Honeywell researchers after making a survey of living habits of homeowners in towns and villages ranging from 2,500 to 10,000 in population.

The company retained two research organizations to find out, among other things, what features of their electric clock thermostats its users liked best.

The fact that they didn't have to get up early to start the furnace got the big nod—even over such other features as manual fuel savings up to 10 per cent, ranging from $14 to $32.

Lightning Sparks

Lightning is not just one big electrical spark. There are many, over the same path. Before the main stroke, the flash feels its way. In about one two-millionth of a second, a "leader" moves down from the electrically charged cloud for about 75 feet. Then it moves some more, so that there may be as many as 40 such steps. When this stepped leader reaches the ground, having taken but a fraction of a second for the whole trip, a conducting path is established between cloud and ground. A discharge then moves upward along this path, at a speed of from 20,000 to 100,000 miles per second. Then there may be many more discharges, each started by a continuous leader and followed by a return stroke. The first upward discharges occur when the leader is within a few hundred feet of the earth. At this time the electrical charge at the ground is so concentrated that streamers may rise many feet before the main flash.

highway map is a wonderful thing to see the road signs along all major highways. even then sometimes it pays to get out and ask up to see if you are on the right track. A case at hand tells of a man who drove up to a service station and wanted to know just what was the best way to get from there to Memphis. The attendant asked if he meant Memphis, Tenn., and that was 2,000 miles away. The motorist had never been told that U. S. 51 out of Chicago. He had just been north instead of south. He was all the way up to Duluth, U. S. 51 before finding out. Sounds like a tall tale, but there are no doubt many of folks being on the right track but headed in the wrong direction.

Walter Dresser Writes Song For Virginia Military Institute

The stirring song of the Virginia Military Institute, "The Spirit of V. M. I." is famous wherever the name of the great Southern school is known. And now Walter Dresser, Appomattox alumnus of the school, has composed another song for the school, "The V. M. I. Tribute." It has been published by Broadcast Music, Inc., of New York, and has been well received where introduced. Mr. Dresser, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Dresser, of Appomattox, composed the music for the song, and words are by Richard E. Mandt.

Mr. Dresser is an accomplished musician. A graduate of V. M. I., class of 1949, he will begin his third year this fall at Peabody Institute of Music, Baltimore. As a student there he has participated in radio and television recitals. He was a leader in the famed V. M. I. band while at Lexington and was helpful in securing the presence of that group in last year's Dedication of the McLean House here.

This summer he is playing at Natural Bridge.

Warner Brothers Studio in Hollywood has requested a copy of the new song.

This Friday night, in the music room of Natural Bridge Hotel, Mr. Dresser will be accompanist in a recital by Miss Phylis Keller. Miss Keller is a graduate of Westminster College and is a talented vocalist.

'Now A Captain'

1st Lt. Willie Rebecca Harvey, U. S. Army Hospital, has been promoted to tire rank of captain upon recommendation on extraordinary high standard of performance of duty as Chief Physical Therapist.

In a commendation letter received by Captain Harvey from Colonel Henry P. Cuntt, deputy post commander, he wrote:

"Your demonstration of leadership, ability to work under tremendous odds as regards shotage of many critical items, such as an inadequate number of treatment tables, work benches, etc., and having to train your enlisted assistants by 'on the job' method,' reflects in you an extraordinary high degree of leadership, a keen knowledge of the problems arising under such circumstances and with the unselfish desire to only have the best in the end results, always bearing in mind the patients' treatment and comfort comes first. At the present time, the Physical Therapy Branch, through your efforts, is a place that the undersigned takes personal pride as one of the activities at Camp Pickett as reaching the tops in perfection and for this, I wholeheartedly commend you for a duty performed to the complete satisfaction of all."

FACTS ON VA. POPULATION

Exactly 3,318,680 persons were living in Virginia as of April 1, 1950, the Bureau of the Census has announced in its final report on last year's population count.

This total made the Old Dominion the 15th most populous State in the Union but still left its inhabitants plenty of breathing room.

For the first time in history, the state's population went above the 3,000,000 mark, growing 23.9 per cent since the count of 2,677,773 recorded in 1940.

A slim majority of the 1950 population—53 per cent—lived in the rural areas. The "country folks" numbered 1,785,565 as contrasted with 1,560,115 who lived in urban areas.

Of the state's 100 counties, 62 increased in population between 1940 and 1950. Five counties—Arlington, Fairfax, Norfolk, Princess Anne, and Warwick —more than doubled in population.

Among the independent cities, of which there were 27, only Clifton Forge failed to gain. Falls Church nearly tripled in population in the ten-year period.

The census showed Richmond as the most populous city in the state with 230,310 inhabitants. Norfolk was runner-up with 213,513.

Arlington County was the most populous county, with 135,449 inhabitants; Craig County the smallest, with a count of only 3,452.

As of April 1, 1950, the bureau reported Virginia had 223 incorporated cities and towns and 46 unincorporated places of 1,000 or more inhabitants.

The report showed that the state's population is shifting rapidly to urban areas. Urban population was up 6.7 per cent over 1940

The 1950 population in the present area of Virginia is five times greater than it was 1790. On August 2, 1790, the population was 691,737. Of that total only 12,226 persons lived in urban areas.

Appomatox won the regular season schedule, marking up another league winner for manager John C. Caldwell's entry. Topped by local plays, and featuring excellent pitching and heavy hitting, the 1951 Green Sox are rated one of the best to represent Appomattox.

Town Council Aug Meeting

At the regular meeting of the Appomattox Town Council Monday night, the town manager was authorized to purchase the sum of $125.00 a lot near the Appomattox ball park, with view to future construction thereon of an incinderator. The street committee was requested to investigate the matter of a suitable town parking lot. An ordinance was adopted concerning the construction of individually built incinderators.

The town also voted to give all regular, full-time employees one week vacation a year, with pay.

EGG CONSUMPTION INCREASE IN U. S.

Each American civilian likely will eat an average of 406 eggs in 1951, 12 more than last year's record, consumption, over the 100 more than during the five years before World War II.

D. U. Livermore, poultry marketing specialist at V. P. I., says this heavy egg-eating probably will continue even in the third quarter of 1951 when retail prices are expected to be well above the relatively low level of a year ago. In the last quarter prices may average about the same as a year earlier.

Egg production during the first six months of 1951 was somewhat lower than for the corresponding period in 1950, but supplies distributed to civilians for current consumption were larger. This arises from the fact that no government purchases of eggs for price support have been made this year, and the net movement of eggs in storage decreased sharply. On July 1 cold storage stocks of shell and frozen eggs were 16 per cent smaller than those of a year earlier, while holdings of shell eggs were the second smallest on record for that date, and about one-third below last year.

Egg production during the last half of the year likely will be somewhat larger than a year earlier. This will offset the reduced supplies available from cold storage stocks. While the number of mature chickens in laying flocks at mid-year was about the same as a year ago, the output of eggs is expected to expand because of a higher rate of lay per bird. More chickens are being raised for farm flock replacement than in 1950, but the increase in egg supplies from this source will not occur until later in the year.

FARM SURVEY SEEKS OPINION ON PROGRAM

Farmers and others interested in farm life in Appomattox County are invited to a countywide meeting at Appomattox Court House on August 28, 1951, at 8:00 P. M., called by the County Agricultural Mobilization Committee.

The meeting will give rural people a final chance to make recommendations on Department of Agriculture programs as part of the Family Farm Policy Review. At the same time, reporters who have been soliciting farm opinion through neighborhood interviews, will have an opportunity to report.

Members of the County Agricultural Mobilization Committee urge rural citizens to take advantage of this chance to have a voice in farm programs. They are especially anxious that Appomattox County's report express just what farmers hereabout think about farm programs.

After the Appomattox meeting there will be a volume of work to be done by this committee in compiling the recommendations and expressions of farmers.

Appomattox County's report to the State Agricultural Mobilization Committee must be ready by September 15.

The cafeteria committee of the Parent - Teacher Association announces the appointment of Mrs. Henry Barger as manager of the Appomattox school cafeteria for the coming school year.

It is also announced that a large new range has been purchased to replace two older stoves now in use.

Equipment has been ordered to set up two cafeteria lines to serve the children, thus speeding up the service.

Meal tickets will be available for the convenience of those desiring to pay by the week for plates and milk.

County schools will open for the next session September 13.

Volume Up At Local Cannery

With the close of work August 17, the Appomattox Community Cannery had the best canning day of the season: a total of 1,992 cans for that day. Due to the unfavorable season in July, the total amount of canning done is behind that of previous years. The white people of the county are taking advantage of the opportunity to work at the cannery much better than the Negro, according to the cannery officials. A total of 14,515 cans of food have been put up this year at the community cannery. Of this volume, 1,461 have been canned by Negro families and 13,054 by the white patrons.

Most of the food canned has been vegetables, in spite of the quantity of fruit in the community. Only a small per cent of chicken has been canned.

Most of the people use the tin cans which are available at the cannery, regardless of the fact that canning in glass has been successful.

The cannery is open at 8:00 A. M. five days a week, Monday through Friday. No appointments have to be made in order to bring your food to the cannery.

P. T. A. Offers Insurance Plan

At a meeting of the executive board of the Appomattox Parent-teacher Association, it was decided to sponsor the sale of accident insurance to the parents of all school children. This is a blanket policy issued to the school and will cover those children and teachers who wish to participate by paying an annual premium of $1.00 for the school year. While participation in this policy is wholly voluntary, it is hoped by the P-T A. that as many of the patrons as possible will avail themselves of this opportunity.
